The Reason Why

Ayer's Pills are so popular is, that while always reliable as a cathartic medicine, they never leave any ill sufects. This is because they are purely regetable, and entirely free from calomel or any other dangerous drug. In all cases, therefore, whether the patient be old or young, they may be confi-

In the Southern and Western States, where derangements of the liver are so general, Ayer's Pills have proved an inestimable blessing. D. W. Baine, New

"I suffered a long time with stomach and liver troubles. I tried various remedies, but received no benefit until I commenced taking Ayer's Fills. These pills benefited me at once. I took them regularly for a few months, and my health was completely restored."

Throughout New England, next to lung diseases, Stomach and Bowel Complaints are the most prevalent.

Dyspepsia and Constipation are almost universal.

Mr. Gallacher, a practical chemist, of Roxbury, Mass., who was long troubled with Dyspepsia, writes:

with Dyspopsia, writes:

"A friend induced me to try Ayer's Pills, and, after taking one box without much benefit, I was disposed to quit them; but he urged perseverance, and,
before I had finished the second box, I began to experience relief. I continued taking them, at intervals, until I had med eleven boxes. Suffice it to say, that I am now a well man, and grateful
to your chemistry, which outstrips
mine."

The head and stomach are always in sympathy; hence the cause of most of those distressing headaches, to which so many, especially women, are subject. Mrs. Harriet A. Marble, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., writes that for years she was a martyr to headache, and never found anything to give her more than temporary relief, until she began taking Ayer's Pills, since which she has been in the enjoyment of perfect health.

THE "TWO SISTERS."

Twenty-seven years ago this day oc-curred the mutiny on the ship Two Sis-ters. All the circumstances were pub-lished at the time, but I doubt if there are today a dozen people in the United States who can recall them. I was one of the crew and a participant, and am now going to give the story of the crime, and leave the reader to judge who was to

The Two Sisters was a fair sized ship. carrying from sixteen to nineteen men, and was owned and sailed from Glasgow.

I had come around to Glasgow on a coaster from Liverpool, having no chance to get a ship and being willing to take up with anything to earn my way until times got better. The Two Sisters was bound for Rio Janeiro, and the day I got into enough, a common seaman got a fall which disabled him, and I was shoved man of us spoke of mutiny or even the which disabled him, and I was shoved into his place, and the ship was off almost before I could turn my head, and cer-tainly before I was prepared for such a long voyage. I had been to sea for sev-eral years previous to this shipment, and had rated as "able" more than once, but in this case I was rated as "ordinary," and the pay was to be for such. I was then about 23 years ild, a thorough Yankee by birth and ! selings, and as I had neither parents nor home I did not care in which direction I sailed. Now, to help you comprehend what nally happened, I want to say that no finally happene maily nappened, I want to say that no sailing ship ever left port with everything entirely satisfactory to Sailor Jack. He is a chronic grumbler, just as the farmer is, but he means no more by his grumbing. He will kick on the food, on the weather, on the cargo, on his quarters, on almost everything connected with the ship and her voyage; but it is simply a fashiou, and he doesn't expect anybody to take him in earnest. And I say further that there is no English, Scotch, German, or American sailing ship affoat today which the captain cares two cents for the life of a foremast hand. The mates are on the slightest provocation, and they will make the provocation themselves. Jack may be cut and bruised and ill, but it is only when he falls helpless that he is permitted to leave his watch. He is not supposed to have any more feelings than an ox and it would seem as if the aim most officers was to make him forget his manhood. The ditch diggers in any country live better than the average sailors. Jack's hours are longer than any workingman's, his pay is less, and there isn't a day from the time the voyage is begun until it ends that his life is not in And, to eap the climax, he is a man to put up with everything. He ex-pects poor grub, plenty of abuse, a great deal of dirty weather, and a close shave for his life about once in so often. He will stand more bulldozing than a black slave, and more abuse than an ox. Mutiny at sea is a rare occurrence. The American marine does not average one in five years. This isn't because the provocation is lacking, for that exists on every ship every day, but because Jack is is willing to bear to the last moment be fore he turns. In my time I have known sailors to cut their throats, hang themsailors to cut their throats, hang them-selves, or leap overboard to end their wretched lives—made wretched and un-bearable by a bullying mate. A soldier would have shot down his officer in such

I am telling you truthfully that not a word of mutiny was whispered during the night. We made no threats, and had no plan, but yet we all felt that the morning would bring a crisis of some sort. Dur ing the night, in the case of both watches, officers were very abusive, and the men were struck or kicked without the cases. A slave would have run away, shadow of an excuse. When daylight came, and we began to scrub down, the We were not out of sight of the coast before it was found that both mates were breeze died quite away, and we lay be-calmed. As we were mustered to be went to the cook's galley to receive their kids and pannikins all three officers showed divided into watches I was surprised to note the fine bearing of the men. It was just such a crew as a captain could feel saw that the captain and first mate had their revolvers. The kids were taken forjust such a crew as a captain could feet confidence in during a long and perilous voyage. If there was a shirk among the lot, his looks did not betray him. When we were divided off I fell to the captain's ward without a word. The food had no been changed, and the men pushed the lishes away. If there was any growling watch, which is in reality the second mate's watch, and I found two more couldn't hear it. "Don't take us for either mutineers or murderers. What has been done was only in self defense. The life of every man here is as safe as in his own home. Now, then, the first thing is to see who of the poor fellows lying on the decks has a bit of life left in him."

A passenger train on a Florida railroad stopped some fifteen miles from Cedar Key to prevent a collision with some cattle, when a black bear came trotting leisurely out of the woods, climbed upon the platform of a car and entered the express room, where he found three strings of ish and some bacon, all of which went quickly into his maw. When the train started up the swaying of the car shut the door. The bear soon became tired of his ride, and looked about for means of egress. Nothing appeared so vuinerable to attack as the windows in the side of the car, which were protected by iron rods about a half inch in diameter. He selected one of these, caught two or three of the iron rods with his paws, and, giving them a hug, broke and twisted them of them a hug, broke and twisted them of to clean.
